QUEST NETTECH CORPORATION FILES PATENT INFRINGEMENT LAWSUIT

New York, NY- Quest Patent Research Corporation (OTC Pink Sheets: QPRC), announced today that its Quest NetTech Corporation subsidiary has initiated patent infringement litigation against several companies in the Middle District of Florida.

Companies named in the lawsuit were Valassis Communications, Inc., Bonnier Corporation, Citrus World, Inc., and Tropical Smoothie Franchise Development Corporation.

Jon Scahill, President and COO commented, "We continue to make tremendous progress in our NetTech licensing program. However, it may be necessary to bring lawsuits from time to time to enforce our intellectual property rights."

Quest has entered into a number of license agreements for the NetTech portfolio of technologies in electronic marketing and promotions. The Company recently settled a patent dispute with Delta Airlines. A roster of licensees is available at www.qprc.com.

About Quest NetTech Corporation

Quest NetTech Corporation is the owner by assignment with all rights to license the patent portfolio of the late Dr. Henry Von Kohorn. Dr. Von Kohorn was an industry leader and innovator during his 93 years; he was awarded over fifty-six United States Patents, the first being granted in 1940. Quest is engaged in an active licensing program to allow those companies practicing the Von Kohorn inventions to take a license to practice the patents on a commercially reasonable basis.
